Wild Civility

Working with Erotic Feelings in Group Therapy and Supervision

Dale C. Godby, PhD, ABPP, CGP
Melissa Black, PhD, CGP
Dallas Group Analytic Practice

Have you ever lost a patient by being too civil? Have your groups ever become too wild? Have you? We will examine erotic feelings as they arise and are defended against in our roles as patient, therapist, supervisor, supervisee, and members of the conference.

Conference participants will:

- Identify desire and dread in their transference and counter-transference reactions.
- Think about the positive and negative impact of lust, desire, intimacy, love, and power in their work.
- Experientially encounter the workings of Eros and our defenses against it within the conference setting.
- Learn to use the tension, wild—civility, in our multiple roles.
Evocations of Eros

Song of Songs
Hebrew Bible ~800 BC

Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth!
   for his love is sweeter than wine...

Love is as strong as death,
   passion as relentless as the grave.
Even its sparks are a raging fire,
   the very flame of Ya.
The chaos of the great sea cannot quench love,
   nor rivers sweep it away.
Were one to give all his wealth for love,
   contempt is all he would gain.

Sonnet 129
Shakespeare~1600

The expense of spirit in a waste of shame
Is lust in action; and till action, lust
Is perjured, murderous, bloody, full of blame,
Savage, extreme, rude, cruel, not to trust,
Enjoy'd no sooner but despised straight,
Past reason hunted, and no sooner had
Past reason hated, as a swallow'd bait
On purpose laid to make the taker mad;
Mad in pursuit and in possession so;
Had, having, and in quest to have, extreme;
A bliss in proof, and proved, a very woe;
Before, a joy proposed; behind, a dream.
All this the world well knows; yet none knows well
To shun the heaven that leads men to this hell.
Delight in Disorder
Robert Herrick 1591-1674

A sweet disorder in the dress
Kindles in clothes a wantonness:
A lawn about the shoulders thrown
Into a fine distraction:
An erring lace, which here and there
Enthralls the crimson stomacher:
A cuff neglectful, and thereby
Ribbons to flow confusedly:
A winning wave (deserving note)
In the tempestuous petticoat:
A careless shoe-string, in whose tie
I see a wild civility:
Do more bewitch me, than when art
Is too precise in every part.

DUINO ELEGIES
The First Elegy
Rainer Maria Rilke 1922

Who, if I cried out, would hear me among the angels' hierarchies? and even if one of them pressed me suddenly against his heart: I would be consumed in that overwhelming existence. For beauty is nothing but the beginning of terror, which we still are just able to endure, and we are so awed because it serenely disdains to annihilate us. Every angel is terrifying.

The Sick Rose
William Blake 1757-1827

O rose, thou art sick!
The invisible worm
That flies in the night,
In the howling storm,

Has found out thy bed
Of crimson joy,
And his dark secret love
Does thy life destroy.
The Garden Of Love
William Blake 1757-1827

I went to the Garden of Love,
And saw what I never had seen;
A Chapel was built in the midst,
Where I used to play on the green.

And the gates of this Chapel were shut
And "Thou shalt not," writ over the door;
So I turned to the Garden of Love
That so many sweet flowers bore.

And I saw it was filled with graves,
And tombstones where flowers should be;
And priests in black gowns were walking their rounds,
And binding with briars my joys and desires.

What angel would hear me?
Jessica Benjamin 1994

"There is a fear, always latent in the countertransference, that reparation can turn to destruction, that love can injure as well as heal....In any event, the fear of destructiveness is surely central to all individual and cultural fears of sexuality, the fear that sexuality can be a traumatic force: greedy, selfish, oblivious, invading, shattering, exploiting....The psychoanalytic endeavor is intended to identify what can be healing as well as destructive in the erotic; and contribute to lifting the weight of the taboo that prevents our conscious participation in that endeavor. " (Benjamin, 1994, 201)

Eros in Plato
427 BC – 347 BC

Eros is a reaching out of the soul to a hoped-for good. The object is eternal beauty. In its crudest form, love for a beautiful person is really a passion to achieve immortality through offspring by that person. A more spiritual form is the aspiration to combine with a kindred soul to give birth to sound institutions and rules of life. Still more spiritual is the endeavor to enrich philosophy and science through noble dialogue.

Ten Common Scenarios

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Scenario</th>
<th>Criterion</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Role Trading</td>
<td>Therapist becomes the “patient” and the wants and needs of the therapist become the focus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Sex Therapy</td>
<td>Therapist fraudulently presents therapist-patient sexual intimacy as a valid treatment for sexual or other kinds of difficulties.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. As If....</td>
<td>Therapist treats positive transference as if it were not the result of the therapeutic situation.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Svengali</td>
<td>Therapist creates and exploits an exaggerated dependence on the part of the patient.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Drugs</td>
<td>Therapist uses cocaine, alcohol, or other drugs as part of the seduction.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. Rape</td>
<td>Therapist uses physical force, threats, and/or intimidation.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. True Love</td>
<td>Therapist uses rationalizations that attempt to discount the clinical/professional nature of the relationship with its attendant responsibilities.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8. It Just Got Out of Hand</td>
<td>Therapist fails to treat the emotional closeness that develops in therapy with sufficient attention, care and respect.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9. Time Out</td>
<td>Therapist fails to acknowledge and take account of the fact that the therapeutic relationship does not cease to exist between scheduled sessions or outside the therapist’s office.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10. Hold Me</td>
<td>Therapist exploits patient’s desire for non-erotic physical contact and possible confusion between erotic and non-erotic contact.</td>

THE EXPLOITATION INDEX

The Exploitation Index: Rate yourself according to the frequency that the following statements reflect your behavior, thoughts, or feelings with regard to any particular patients you have seen in psychotherapy within the past 2 years, by placing a check in the appropriate box. Approximate frequency as follows:

Rarely = about once a year or less  Sometimes = about once every 3 months  Often = once a month or more

Please give your immediate, “off the cuff” responses:
